

Deep Learning is a subset of machine learning based on artificial neural networks.

Neural networks contain layers such as input layers, hidden layers, and output layers.

Deep learning powers image recognition, speech recognition, and natural language processing.